1. Introduction

This listing of publicly available material on Captains Flat does not contain all mentions of Captains Flat in all publications. Obituaries, for instance, are well covered in a variety of indexes and so do not need to be reproduced individually unless they are sourced from other than the main obituary resources.

The lack of page numbers on the newspaper articles stems from two sources, one, the people compiling the newspaper clipping files did not note them and two, some internet newspapers do not quote the page number of the print version especially The Canberra Times and the Queanbeyan Age.

Internet copies of publications are not usually included, though where the publication is solely published on the internet it has been included e.g. Bright Spars at the University of Melbourne.

The material resides in a number of repositories, most of which have internet access, either to listing of the material, or to digitised copies. The major repositories are:

3. Maps

Captains Flat was in the Shire of Yarrowlunla and in the Parish of Ballalaba and also in Bullongong County of Murray. It is now in a different Shire, briefly known as Eastern Capital City Region Council and finally as Palerang Council. Its reference is

LATITUDE: 35° 34' S [Decimal Degrees -35.582°]

LONGITUDE: 149° 27' E [Decimal Degrees 149.451°]

EASTING: 722000 [UTM zone 55, GDA 94]

Many collections of maps are being digitised especially the historic maps held by the New South Wales Department of Lands, Land and Property Information Division and the National Library. The Geographical Names Board of New South Wales maintains the register of official geographical names of New South Wales.

7. Geological surveys

Geological survey reports relating to the mining companies or the mining area of Captains Flat were produced by the NSW Department of Mineral Resources and a variety of companies holding mining leases.

State Records New South Wales <http://www.records.nsw.gov.au/>, series 15033, Geological survey reports starting 1 January 1875 lists the geological surveys. Use the Archives Investigator and the search term Captains Flat to bring up a list of 203 items.

The Department of Mineral Resources has digitised all of their reports and they are on a searchable database. (Digital Imaging of Geological Systems)
<http://www.minerals.nsw.gov.au/geosurvey/digs.htm>

The reports by mining companies can also be found at the State Records New South Wales website.
